Poet in the past

Scottish Poetry Library

Schools' poetry and architecture resource

Historic Scotland can bring Scotland's past to life - you can visit 300 exciting historic sites for free (but you have to bring your teacher!) There are lots of fun things to do on visits (and a range of free resources for your teacher!)

Teachers: for more information log on to www.historic-scotland.gov.uk or speak to Susanne Stewart, Education Assistant on 0131 668 8793.

EDINBURGH WORLD HERITAGE

The differences between the tall tenements and narrow closes of Edinburgh's Medieval Old Town, and the grand spacious houses in the Georgian New Town make these unique buildings and streets of world-wide importance. Edinburgh World Heritage protects and looks after many of them and we can help you learn lots more about them.

Teachers: For further information or to arrange a visit to the EWH Site, contact 0131 220 7720 or info@ewht.org.uk www.ewht.org.uk

THE ARCHITECTURAL HERITAGE SOCIETY OF SCOTLAND

The Architectural Heritage Society of Scotland encourages the study and preservation of Scotland's built heritage. It comments on applications to alter or demolish historic buildings and helps people and communities campaign to protect ones that are threatened or neglected.

Teachers: Contact with and support from one of the AHSS six regional Scottish groups may be arranged via AHSS Director, Andrew Martindale (director@ahss.org.uk) Visit the AHSS website at www.ahss.org.uk

Royal Commission on the Ancient and Historical Monuments of Scotland

The Royal Commission on the Ancient and Historical Monuments of Scotland collects, records and keeps information about Scottish archaeological, architectural and historical sites.

Teachers: Our website is a rich source of information. Phone, write, email or visit our public search room to see a huge, freely available selection of drawings, photographs and information. www.rcahms.gov.uk
