

The magazines listed are those that are currently held in the Scottish Poetry Library. Back runs of many other periodicals, either no longer in existence or no longer collected, are not included here, but are held on open shelves and fully accessible within the library. For current holdings information, please click on each title to see the record in the SPL online catalogue.

Writers aiming to have their poetry published in magazines are strongly advised to familiarise themselves with a particular magazine before submitting work. We endeavour to keep these details up-to-date, but always recommend double checking editor's names and contact information on the individual publication's website. Different magazines have different submission guidelines and these need to be followed.
